

Masters Program through UNE

Masters of Public Health (MPH)

Through On Line coursework with the University of New England's Masters in Public Health program, a tailored program leading to the MPH will be made available. Graduates will be able to incorporate their primary care training with aspects of community and world level issues in health care.

Master of Medical Education Leadership (MMEL)

Through On Line course work with the University of New England, residents may accomplish a Masters in Medical Education Leadership whose curriculum trains physicians and other health care professionals with didactic development, and other aspects of becoming a medical educator. The degree focuses on training leadership in medical education for future academic careers.
